Dear Harold –

Many thanks for talking to McKnight for me. I am in the process of winding up a business I've been in for many years. I should have free time beginning about May 1, and then will get busy getting my files in shape. Please tell Jerry I'll be in touch with him then.

I received Selby's video, and found it an excellent and valuable work.

I did note one important error. Agreeing with the W.C., he has JFK ~~[redacted]~~ first reacting to a hit in Z-210! I recall you and I were in early agreement that he was first hit immediately prior to Z-189 (186-188). This was also Groden position → As did Thompson.

on pg. 142 of his 1976 book "JFK: The case for Conspiracy". I was surprised therefore to see him on the video supporting the view that JFK shows no evidence of being struck prior to 210. I know agreeing with the W.C. on this makes it simpler to nail them on the shot-timing constraint vs. the separate hit to Connally, but it's simply incorrect to say JFK shows no reaction to hit until 210 when careful analysis of the Zapruder slides, supported further by much testimony (Jackie, Willis, Holland, etc) proves otherwise. This is further supported by Lillian Castellano's independent proof that Willis #5 corresponds to Z:202, by which time JFK already hit. (Of course even the WC didn't want to say "Oswald" took a wild shot through the tree-foliage and hit JFK. 156-159)

Best regards. RAY
